Director’s Notes

The Music Theatre Program here at Sheridan College has a Commercial or “Pop” Music Course. This, in conjunction with the Vocal Course, gives the performer a rounded outlook and experience in regards to the Music Business. “Be it whatever.”

The line between “The Musical” and “Commercial Music” becomes more blurred as time goes on, hence the need for the blending of techniques and delivery.

We have always enjoyed the results of the “Commercial” and “Dance” final critique within the Music Theatre Department and two years ago it was decided to open these exciting performances to our patrons. The show was a hit and so here we are again presenting the individual solo works of our students for your pleasure.

Enjoy!

about the film
Set in the early 70's, Breaking the Waves is the powerful story of Bess (Emily Watson), a naive young woman living in a small, rigid community on the northwest coast of Scotland. Bess falls in love with Jan (Stellan Skarsgard), an oil-rig worker and outsider to the village. Her love for Jan is so strong that she marries him despite local opposition. When Jan returns to the oil-rig, Bess prays daily for his return, convinced that their love is heaven sent. When an accident on the oil-rig renders Jan paralysed, he worries that his young wife will be denied a normal life and convinces her that she will aid his recovery if she takes a lover and recounts her sexual experiences to him. Believing that Jan’s health can be affected by her conduct, Bess spirals into a world she can’t understand.
